

Lesson 1A Is that a fact?

Vaguest terms	Расплывчатые выражения
Conjunction	Союз
Comment adverb	Комментарий (наречие)
Remarkably	Примечательно
Intricacy	Тонкости, сложности
Suggest	Предлагать
I would rather	Я бы лучше
Mislaid	Потеряно
I haven't got a clue.	Понятия не имею.
Cringe-worthy	Отвращение, стыдно
Reassuringly	Подбодрить, убеждающие
Murmur	Бормотать, мямлить
Be resilient	Будь стойким
I am on board	Меня устраивает
Overly simplistic	Слишком простой
Struck a chord with me	Задело за живое
Fair share	Справедливая доля
Galling	Раздражающие, неприятные
Make sense	Имеет смысл
Dwell on	Зацикливаться на
Get hung up about	Зацикливаться на
It bugs me	Раздражает меня
It is patently not true	Это неправда
Give it a good go	Дать чему-то шанс
Be cut out	Быть
I for one	Что касается меня, Я лично
Vacuous comments	Пустой комментарий
Sweeping statements	Громкое заявление

An element of truth	Имеет место быть
Lose it	Выйти из себя
Trot out these trite phrases	Повторять банальные фразы
The are way too oversimplistic	Слишком простой
Complete fallacy	Полная чушь, заблуждение
Dire consequences	Ужасные последствия
Rings true	Звучит правдоподобно
Feel strongly	Испытываю сильные чувства
Spot on	В точку, точно в цель
Passage	Проезд
Throw in the towel	Сдаваться
Setback	Неудача, ошибка
Fly in the face	Бросать вызов
Knocked confidence	Подкосить уверенность
Be cut out	Быть созданным для чего-то
Conventional	Общепринятый
Whereby	Посредством

Эти выражения часто используют, когда нужно согласиться или не согласиться с чьим-то мнением, поэтому полезно выучить их не по отдельности, а в связках:

I completely agree. The idea is spot on.

That rings true to me.

I can see your point, and there is an element of truth in that.

However, I think this is a sweeping statement.

In my opinion, that is a complete fallacy.

It simply doesn't make sense.

That is patently not true.

GRAMMAR

Should = If

1 Conditional:

Should you have any questions, you can text me.

If you should have any questions, ...

2 conditional

If he arrived late he would get into troubles.

Should he arrive late, he would get into troubles (more polite).

Providing that – в случае, если

But for – если бы не

But for +object – без past perfect

On condition (that) – при условии, что

Unless + positive verb

Unless + past participle (ed/ 3-d form)

Don't open this lid unless instructed by a technician.

Mixed conditionals

We use mixed conditionals to speculate about possible results in the present, past or future of hypothetical situations or actions in a different time.

To speculate about the possible result in the present of a hypothetical action or situation in the past, we use if + past perfect + would + infinitive without to.

If I'd known about the road closure, I wouldn't be in this traffic jam.

To speculate about the past result of a hypothetical action or situation that is still true in the present, we use if + past + would have + past participle.

If I earned more money, I would have bought that car yesterday.

To speculate about the future result of a hypothetical action or situation in the past, we use if + past perfect + would + infinitive without to.

If I hadn't agreed to work this weekend, I'd go swimming with you.

Alternative forms

We can use if it + not be + for in second and third conditionals when someone/something affected or has affected the outcome of a situation.

If it weren't for my poor French, I'd apply for the job in Paris.

We can use if I were to + infinitive without to when we want to make a second conditional less likely.

If I were to buy that bike, I know I'd regret spending the money later.

Inversion

We can use inversion in third conditionals to replace if.

Had you been at the meeting last week, you'd have heard the news.

We can also use inversion in second conditionals with were to.

Were I to retake the test, I'd definitely pass it.

Note: inversion also adds formality to the sentence.

Alternatives to if

Should + subject + infinitive without to can replace if in first conditionals, when something is unlikely or not particularly probable.

Should we manage to get a ticket, we'll give you a call.

We use provided/providing (that), on condition (that) and, less formally, as long as to mean if and only if, especially where we have reservations.

We'll sign the contract providing that we can sign today.

Unless in conditional sentences means if not.

Unless you have a boarding card, you can't get on the plane.

Unless can be used formally with a past participle, or to express an afterthought.

Let's go to see a movie – unless, of course, you want to stay at home.

Without + noun or -ing form can replace unless + verb.

Without a boarding card, you won't be allowed on the plane.

Without having a boarding card, you won't be allowed on the plane.

We use whether or not or even if to emphasise that something will still be true if another thing happens.

I exercise every day, whether I feel like it or not.

But for (+ noun or -ing) in written and more formal situations means if something hadn't happened.

But for her mother's unstinting support, Lena would have given up.